If we return to the crucifixion, we behold Christ led by the Jewish shoemaker's house, bowed down beneath the weight of that very cross which the manifold guilt of the race he loved too well had condemned him to bear. Pale with fatigue, suffocated by sighs, yet with the glory of an infinite compassion and mercy irradiating his countenance, he lingers an instant near the door to rest. But, observed, he is driven brutally forward. Then it was that Christ, looking at him, said, "I shall stand and rest, but thou shalt go till the last day." And when did Christ ever speak an idle
